

A Personal Introduction to:

The Masters Group

An Owners' Association (COA & HOA) Management Company

On behalf of The Masters Group, I wish to thank you for your interest in reviewing our Web Site and ideally contacting us directly for more information and details.

Since our inception, The Masters Group has focused on serving the Association Members' near and long term needs by providing responsive (friendly) service, expert advice, pro-active viewpoints, and a solid implementation team. Our original charter has not changed over the last 23 years. We believe in first understanding the expectations of the community members, identifying where we can provide added-value as a management company, and then deploying the resources to meet those expectations. Our expertise includes time-tested qualified managers, with technical and business degrees in geology, financial accounting, and management from local universities (e.g. each of our managers has been with our company for a minimum of 10 years). Additionally, we seek and maintain strong working relationships with structural and general engineering, architecture and design firms, roadway and road-construction firms, a host of essential specialty maintenance firms and best-in-class GAAP-based accounting practices and partners).

We believe that all the individual Association Members and the Board of Directors should enjoy working and/or living within their respective communities and take an active part in their community experience. That also means, that a competent management company is always looking for ways to improve the community, to be resourceful within the budget constraints, to be available and visible within the community grounds, and handles the disposition of a variety of issues between Members or the Association in a timely and equitable manner.

In a nutshell, that is what The Masters Group provides. We trust that your decision to hire us will be the most pro-active decision you will have to make for your Community Members.
